Corval Group Completes 1 Million Hours Recordable-Free

St. Paul, MN – September 12, 2018 – Corval Group is celebrating the achievement of 1,000,000 hours without a recordable injury. In an industry that is inherently dangerous, safety is of primary importance to both builders and their customers. Thanks to firm-wide support and proactive safety programs, Corval hasn't had a recordable injury occur since September 2017.

The significant milestone is difficult to achieve in construction – where hazardous work meets variable human behavior. OSHA defines a recordable incident as any work-related injury or illness requiring medical treatment beyond first aid. Self-performing two-thirds of their construction projects, Corval's employees completed the majority of the 1 million hours in the field, where hazards abound.

"Every aspect of our safety program is intended to prevent injury or illness," said Paul Jordan, Chief Executive Officer at Corval Group, "but this milestone is a testament to Corval employees across the country who have committed themselves to working safely every day."

By recognizing the importance of safety in the workplace and emphasizing personal safety in all aspects, Corval strives for world class safety on job sites, in the office and at home, to assure every next task is completed incident-free.
